

Label Management

Products can be given labels according to a range of criteria, including condition, brand, product category, and any other characteristic that sets them apart. They facilitate the proper management and marketing of items by aiding in their organization and differentiation.

Businesses can optimize their marketplace listings, inventory management, and marketing efforts by labelling products in Rithum Connector. Labels make it simple to identify and classify products that share similar attributes, making it possible to carry out targeted pricing adjustments, promotions, and other targeted actions.
